Let's Start!

I'm excited! I've got good news! What is it?

Learning Outcome

Exchange information on instructions about basic activities and safety at work.

Can Do Statements

- I can respond to good news.
- I can express ability.
- I can talk about feelings and reactions.

Ask your partner:

- What good news did you get recently?
- What do you say when someone tells you good news?

Let's Explore!

Peter is sharing his good news with Sally, but he wants her advice.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Peter: Hey Sally!
Sally: Hey Peter! What's up?
Peter: I have some good news to tell you!
Sally: Oh, good news? What is it?
Peter: The good news is I have an interview this upcoming week.
Sally: Really? That's wonderful! Congratulations!
Peter: Thanks, Sally. The bad news is I'm so nervous! I want to make a good impression!
Sally: Don't stress about it!
Peter: Do you have any advice? What can I do?
Sally: Well, to make a good impression on them, you can project an image of confidence. You can prepare by reviewing interview questions.
Peter: How can I do that?
Sally: You can act like you are the perfect candidate for the job.
Peter: Hmm. That sounds hard!

Let's Practice!

What advice did Sally give Peter? What can Peter do?

Instructions: Read the dialogue aloud. Select all the correct answers.

1. Peter ...

- ☐ should be nervous.
- ☐ can review interview questions.
- ☐ can project an image of confidence.
- ☐ can't get dressed.
- ☐ won't meet Sally.

Learning Points

Modals for Ability

You use the modal can to talk about ability -- what you are able to do or not able to do. The negative form is can't. They go before a verb in the base form.

Examples:

- Can you explain that?
- I can help you.
- I can't do that. I'm nervous!

Responding to Good News

There are different ways to respond to good news.

- Congratulations!
- That's great/fantastic/wonderful!
- What great/fantastic/wonderful news!
- That's great/fantastic/wonderful news!
- I'm glad to hear that!

Examples:

- Tom: I have a new job!
- Tammy: That's great!
